Returning with partners and/or kids

Logistics

Returning with de facto partner

- Your Australian de facto partner must apply for and be granted pre-clearance before coming to Ireland.
 - Collect documents to prove that you have lived together for two years and that show your relationship history
 - These could be things like your marriage cert, joint holiday bookings, photos, joint bank account statements and utility bills.
 - These will be needed during the pre-clearance process

Returning with civil partner or spouse

- Your Australian civil partner or spouse doesn't need a visa to enter Ireland
 - At immigration control they will have to declare that they intend to apply for residency based on your relationship
- Collect docs that provide a full account of your relationship history
 - These could be things like your marriage cert, joint holiday bookings, photos, joint bank account statements and utility bills.
 - An officer may request these documents at immigration control and you will need them when you apply for residency

Returning with children

- Before you go back:
 - Apply for child's Irish passport using APS2 form if they don't have one
 - Forms at Claddagh or the Irish consulate
 - Apply for a school place – depends on admissions policy
 - Find schools at www.education.ie
 - Print your child's immunisation statement from your Medicare online account through my.gov.au
- Once in Ireland
 - Apply for PPS number
 - Apply for Child Benefit (€ 140/child/month)
 - Get free GP visit card for children under 6
 - Take advantage of the Early Childhood Care and Education Scheme
 - Investigate childcare options
 - If necessary apply for Special Needs assessment or Assistance
